35th ISO SEMINAR

The Chairman this year is José Orive, Executive Director of the International Sugar Organization (ISO) since 2014 and now is in his last year at the ISO. This year's theme of the importance of considering the sucro-energetic world in a holistic way could not be more relevant to José's vision for the sugar and ethanol world about which he is so passionate. The need to encourage and inspire the best in people working in the sector so that they can flourish and bring out new ideas for the improvement of the whole sector is essential and something that is being done across the board with investment in people and technology. Sugar, be it cane or beet, is not grown in splendid isolation; it is part of a broad agricultural and economic picture that impacts the way we all live now and will continue to do so in the future. This year's seminar brings together experts and world leaders who can bring about change with their energy, know-how and vision. It promises to be once more THE sugar event of the year which really must be attended.

Interpretation will be available in English, French, Portuguese and Spanish.
